Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. In a large bowl beat the ricotta, softened cream cheese, vanilla, gelatin and confectioners erythritol with a hand mixer until smooth, thick and creamy. 1:17
2. Fold in the sugar-free chocolate chips with a spatula and refrigerate the filling while you make the crust. 2:46
3. Heat the oven to 325°F. Whisk the almond flour, granulated erythritol and a pinch of salt in a medium bowl. 3:14
4. Add the melted butter and stir with a spatula until crumbly. 4:00
5. Spray a 9-inch pie plate and press the crumbs in, working from the middle outwards so there is enough for the sides. 4:10
6. Bake 10–12 minutes until golden brown, then let the crust cool completely in the plate. 4:35
7. Spread the filling evenly in the cooled crust and refrigerate about 2 hours until set. Cut into 8 slices. 4:49

> Tip Check ricotta labels: carbs vary a lot between brands, as the cook points out. Use superfine almond flour, not almond meal or coconut flour. Skip the crust for a lower-carb crustless version.
