Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Weigh the keto chocolate chips, chop them into small pieces on a board and set aside. 0:40
2. Set a wide-mouth mason jar (at least 500 ml) on the scale and pour in the heavy cream. 1:13
3. Add the confectioners erythritol. If you'll keep the ice cream frozen for more than a day, use allulose instead so it stays soft. 1:32
4. Add the peppermint extract, 3 drops of green food colouring if you like, and half the chopped chips. 2:41
5. Screw on the lid and shake for a couple of minutes, until the cream thickens and nearly doubles. Add the rest of the chips and give it a short final shake. 3:07
6. Freeze for about 5 hours, then scoop into bowls (3 scoops). 3:35

> Tip Green food colouring (about 3 drops) is optional. Allulose swaps 1:1 for the erythritol and keeps the ice cream scoopable for days, as the cook suggests.
