A light side of leafy greens and fried tofu: about 65 kcal and 4 g net carbs a serve, with 2.6 g added sugar from the mirin; rich in vitamins C and K from the komatsuna.

Diet notes: Gluten-free with a swap: Use tamari instead of soy sauce.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Cut the komatsuna into bite-size lengths, then cut the base of the stems apart and rinse well where grit collects between them. 1:12
2. Cut the abura-age into short strips; there is no need to blanch it, as its oil adds richness to the dish. 2:51
3. Mix the seasoning: 1 tbsp each of soy sauce, mirin and water. That is all the liquid the dish needs, because the greens release their own. 3:24
4. Heat a frying pan, add a little sesame oil and stir-fry the stems first. Once they are coated and starting to soften, add the leaves. 4:33
5. When the leaves just wilt, pour in the seasoning, toss everything together and add the abura-age. 5:35
6. Cover, turn the heat to low and steam for 1 minute, then turn off the heat and leave covered about 5 minutes so the greens cook through and soak up the flavour. 5:55
7. Toss in the bonito flakes and serve warm or cold. 8:01

> Tip Serves 3 as a side (our estimate; the cook gives an 'easy-to-make' batch). Keeps 2–3 days in the fridge and is good cold. Spinach or bok choy work the same way.
