Whole black lentils keep their skins, so each serve carries about 11 g of fibre and 13 g of plant protein, and is rich in folate and iron. The only fat is the tarka oil and a little milk; no cream or butter.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Rinse the whole black lentils, cover with water and soak for 15 minutes, then drain. 0:11
2. Put the lentils in a pot with 470–710 ml of water, the turmeric, salt and half the crushed garlic. Bring to the boil, partly cover and simmer on low for 20–25 minutes until tender. 0:29
3. Stir in the milk, red chilli powder and garam masala and cook for another 4–5 minutes. 1:09
4. For the tarka, heat the oil in a small frying pan and fry the chopped onion until translucent. Add the remaining garlic, then the cumin seeds and green chillies and cook for 30 seconds. 1:32
5. Add the curry leaves and mix, then pour the sizzling tarka over the daal and stir it through. 2:09
6. Finish with a squeeze of lemon juice and serve hot. 2:41

> Tip Use 3 tbsp of oil for a lighter tarka. Serve with rice or roti. The daal freezes well; reheat with a splash of water and make the tarka fresh. Swap the milk for unsweetened soy milk to make it vegan.

The method is a summary in our words — the video shows every step.
