40 g protein, 6 g fibre and 11.5 g net carbs a serve: beef and peanuts slow-cooked with bitter greens. The beef makes it rich in zinc and vitamin B12.

Diet notes: Gluten-free with a swap: Check that the stock cube is gluten-free.

Ingredients 12 · SERVES 8

- [ ] 12 oz raw white peanuts (skinless), soaked overnight or boiled 30 minutes
- [ ] 11 oz ndolé (bitterleaf), washed, boiled and squeezed dry

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Blend the leek, garlic and 3½ of the onions to a smooth purée; slice the remaining 1½ onions and set aside. Grind the soaked or boiled peanuts to a smooth, thick cream. 1:11
2. Put the beef in a pot with 2–3 tbsp of the onion purée, salt, the stock cube and pepper. Add about 1⅔ cups water and simmer for about 40 minutes until the meat is tender, then lift the meat out. 1:35
3. Stir the peanut cream into the hot broth, rinsing the blender with about ¾ cup water, add the chilli and let it bubble for about 30 minutes. 2:20
4. Add the rest of the onion purée and a third of the dried shrimp. Cook for another 30 minutes, stirring now and then, until the peanuts are cooked and a little oil rises to the surface. 2:52
5. Adjust the salt, add the second stock cube and about 1 tsp more pepper, return the beef and stir in the bitterleaf in two batches until it is fully mixed into the peanut sauce. Leave to simmer gently. 3:22
6. Meanwhile fry the sliced onion in the oil over medium heat until translucent, without browning, then add the remaining shrimp for about 2 minutes. 4:20
7. Stir the onion and shrimp into the pot, simmer a few minutes more on medium-low heat and serve. 4:56

> Tip Serves 8 (our estimate). Traditionally eaten with miondo or bobolo (cassava sticks), boiled plantain or yam; a vegetable side keeps it lower in carbs. Washed bitterleaf is sold frozen or dried in African grocers.
