Chicken breast mince and a fried egg give about 31 g of protein a serve, and the big handful of basil, garlic and chilli bring the flavour with only a little sugar and sauce.

Diet notes: Low carb (56 g net carbs) but not keto: 57% of the energy is from fat, and keto meals get about 60% or more; Gluten-free with a swap: Use tamari in place of the light and thick soy sauce.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Crush the garlic cloves one at a time with the flat of a knife. Stem the chillies; halve the green ones and leave the red ones whole. 0:52
2. Heat the oil in a wok and stir-fry the garlic for a minute (it doesn't need to brown). Add half the chillies and fry another minute until fragrant. 1:14
3. Add the chicken and light soy sauce and stir-fry for a minute, breaking up the lumps. Add the thick soy sauce and keep cooking and breaking it up for another minute until no longer pink. 1:45
4. Add the rest of the chillies, the sugar and the fish sauce (pour it down the side of the hot pan for extra aroma) and stir well. Cover and simmer 2 minutes so the chicken is cooked through. 2:45
5. Stir in all the basil for about 30 seconds until it softens, then taste and adjust. Serve over rice with a fried egg on top. 3:21

> Tip The cook says this serves 4 with rice and an egg. Skip the egg or use brown rice to change it up, and adjust the chilli to taste: the red ones are the hottest.

The method is a summary in our words — the video shows every step.
